Communication is essential in keeping the public safe and protecting our communities. Recently, our approved cooperative purchasing partner, Sourcewell, awarded contracts for Wireless Voice and Data Services to AT&T and Sprint. As a government organization, Sourcewell has been providing competitively awarded contracts to public entities for the past 40 years. This can make the purchasing process a little easier so that your first responders can get the modern equipment and services they need every day - smartphones, cell phones, tablets, Wi-Fi devices, chargers and accessories, and other related services.

Products and services from FirstNet-Built with AT&T, the only communications platform dedicated to first responders, are available in these offerings. Situational awareness, tracking, video, machine learning, and risk management will all be enabled by this foundational technology. Creativity and innovation happen when we can share information with huge bandwidth to and from the field and within every incident. The future is coming, and it will be delivered via broadband. We are proud to help make this tech accessible to you and to foster further innovation.
